

AMHS Senior Economics students in front of the Manhattan Federal Reserve Bank

Each student received a bag that said real money on it. This is money taken out of circulation and then shredded before being disposed of in a landfill facility in New Jersey. Each bag holds approximately $200.00. You can imagine the looks on our students' faces when they saw thousands of dollars being shredded.

